GOVERNOR

Protecting Private Property Rights

Private property rights are a cornerstone of liberty. Our nation became the greatest on earth because our founders dared to believe in the principle of private property rights, giving private citizens the opportunity to own land to use it to create economic opportunities for them and their families. This core, constitutional principle deserves our best efforts to protect it. It's wrong for governments to abuse eminent domain powers to take away your property, and it's more important than ever to support our 5th Amendment due process protections for everyone. As governor, you can count on me to protect your private property rights from an overreaching government.

"Private property rights are a cornerstone of liberty."
