GOVERNOR

Cutting Red Tape

Heavy-handed government leads to corruption, suffocates economic growth, and hurts Idaho families. Expansive regulations are hidden taxes, designed and implemented for the convenience of bureaucrats, without regard for the real-world economic impacts they have on families and businesses.

As a small business owner myself, I've experienced firsthand how the heavy-hand of government stifles businesses and makes it hard for people to live out their dreams, free from government interference.

Excessive regulations can also be used by corrupt officials to pick winners and losers. I've fought to make government fair and even-handed by co-sponsoring legislation such as the Regulatory Integrity Protection Act to reign in the EPA's power grab. As governor, I'll hold every agency accountable to the citizens of Idaho, simplify state rules and oppose regulations that hurt Idaho's economy.

"Heavy-handed government suffocates economic growth."
